We Suggest

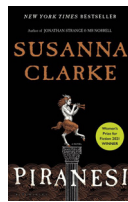

STAFF RECOMMENDATIONS: Our "Favorite" Unreliable Narrators

The Murder of Roger Ackroyd* by Agatha Christie

This classic was very controversial at the time of its publication because of the twist involved in the plot; some readers felt it didn't play by the rules that were informally set for the detective genre.

— Beth Jacob, information services librarian

Piranesi* by Suzanna Clarke

Piranesi is a man who is wandering around "the house," which is an endless maze of rooms filled with statues. Piranesi loves the house and its beauty and often shares his findings with the only other resident of the house, "The Other." Piranesi and The Other are working to find what kind of secrets the house holds. As the book goes on, you start to realize that someone isn't telling the whole truth.

— Tera Stadtmiller, information services assistant

Looker* by Laura Sims

The narrator of this debut novel isn't intentionally unreliable. Far from it. More accurately, the reader has a front row seat to her mental descent. What starts as a slow burn of a plot begins to subtly spiral and becomes impossible to look away from. The narrator did things that makes one more than cringe, and yet, I compulsively kept turning the page.

— Anonymous staff member

We Have Always Lived in the Castle* by Shirley Jackson

This is an eerie book that follows a girl and her older sister who have a family secret that may not be as it first appears. I love how the author leaves hints about the truth throughout the story, so the reveal is both shocking and justified. It is my favorite work by Shirley Jackson.

— Katherine Sallee, adult/teen services librarian

The Island of Dr. Moreau* by H.G. Wells

It is the story of a man who was rescued from a shipwreck, only to be taken to an island where some weird things are going on. It's heavily implied that the narrator has lost his mind, so you don't know for sure if he is telling the truth or not.

— Chay Rust, patron services supervisor

The Catcher in the Rye* by J.D. Salinger

The reader cheers for Holden in his teen journey to find truth among the "phonies." We find later that his world view is skewed.

— Anne Fertitta, patron services supervisor

This year's Spotlight Series promises musical numbers, unsolved cold cases and how to spend a perfect day in the Bluegrass State.

All talks are on Thursdays at 7 pm at Bellevue's Callahan Community Center (322 Van Voast Ave, Bellevue, KY 41073). Register for each installment at cc-pl.org/spotlight-series-24.

Ahead of the series, we caught up with JT Townsend—author of Queen City Gothic and Summer's Almost Gone— via email who will discuss "The Haunting Case of the Bricca Murders" on Aug. 22.

In writing Summer's Almost Gone, Townsend was given unprecedented access to the Bricca case file, sifting through formerly sealed information that, before his book, hadn't made its way to print.

Townsend says he has been fascinated by the Bricca Murders ever since the news broke on Sept. 28, 1966, when he was 12. The murders came at a time when a serial killer dubbed the "Cincinnati Strangler" already had the city on high alert. Still, the question of who killed the Bricca family looms.

Why does the case still stick with people today? "Because it was an unbelievable crime – hideous, unexpected, baffling," says Townsend. "The victims were a workaholic husband, his alluring former airline stewardess' wife and their precocious four-year-old daughter. Rumors of adultery started immediately.

"The overtones of a sexual scandal dominated the investigation 58 years ago and still resonate today. And the child victim repulsed everyone – suggesting she was murdered because she could identify a killer well-known to the family. If this crime happened today, it would certainly be profiled on Dateline."

According to Townsend, the key to writing Summer's Almost Gone was obtaining the Bricca case file in 2014. He had already written a chapter on the case in 2009's Queen City Gothic, but to write the book, he needed the file. Townsend says that 90 percent of that information had not yet been publicly released.

"Then the challenge was putting it all in a chronological, narrative format," says Townsend. "I also worked with a genealogist to track down and interview surviving witnesses and family members, which provided the personal, human angle to balance out the case file information."

Patrons can expect to learn about the research process and the case at Aug. 22's talk. Townsend bills the presentation as a "fascinating lecture combined with riveting PowerPoint imagery." Audiences will be taken back to 1966, a time before modern computers or DNA evidence.

"Working with typewriters, shoe leather, informants and rumors, we (will) watch the investigators slowly winnow down the list of suspects and began to focus on one man in particular," says Townsend.

OTHER SPOTLIGHT SERIES DATES

Aug. 15: Sin City – A Musical Revue

The Sin City Minstrels will perform musical numbers from the musical Sin City, along with sharing the story of George Ratterman, a one-time professional footballer. Born in Cincinnati, Ratterman was a record-setting quarterback whose career ran from 1947 to 1956, ending after a leg injury.

He went on to be elected as Campbell County sheriff after a bizarre campaign in which Ratterman was a victim of a failed blackmail attempt.

Aug. 29: Perfect Day in Kentucky –Traveling Around Kentucky

If you're looking to take a weekend trip before summer officially ends, you may just get a few ideas at the last installment of Spotlight Series!

Author Kathy Witt will return to the library to discuss her book, Perfect Day Kentucky: Day Trips, Weekend Getaways, and Other Escapes. Learn about the process of writing the book and how to spend a day in communities across the state. There's even a chapter on Northern Kentucky!

FALL PROGRAMMING PREVIEW

The dog days of summer are ending; autumn here we come!

The library has a fun season in store, from lectures to another Book Bus tour.

Grab your planner and save these dates. We can't wait to see you!

Signature Series: The Last Glory Days of Baseball with Keith O'Brien

The library's Signature Series returns to the Carrico/Fort Thomas Branch on Friday, Sept. 6 at 7 pm. Delve into the story of legendary and infamous Cincinnati Reds player Pete Rose.

Hear from Keith O'Brien, who used interviews, FBI interviews, court records and press coverage in writing his new book Charlie Hustle: The Rise and Fall of Pete Rose, and the Last Glory Days of Baseball. O'Brien—born and raised in Cincinnati and now living in New Hampshire—has authored four books, including Charlie Hustle. He has been a PEN/ESPN finalist for Literary Sportswriting, along with being longlisted for the Andrew Carnegie Medal for Excellence in Nonfiction.

Released this spring, Charlie Hustle was an instant New York Times bestseller and The Wall Street Journal called it "comprehensive, compulsively readable and wholly terrific." The book unravels the story of Rose, who set the still-standing record of most hits; in the '80s, he became the focal point of one of Major League Baseball's biggest scandals. A book signing with refreshments will follow O'Brien's talk. If you can't make it in the evening, there will be a shorter afternoon sneak peek at 2 pm. Register at cc-pl.org/signature-series.

Banned Books Week

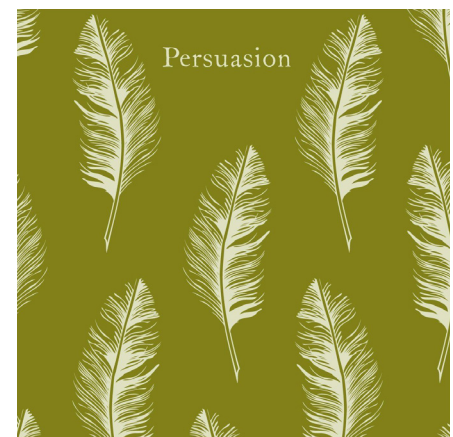

Celebrate Banned Books Week Sept. 22-28 with the library! Banned Books Week was first launched in 1982 by the American Library Association in response to a surge in challenges to books in libraries, schools and bookstores.

The annual event is celebrated across the book community and champions the freedom to read and access valuable information.

Each branch will have a Banned Books Week display in September; come by and check one (or two! or five!) out to read. No matter the time of year, library staff are happy to recommend their own favorite banned books.

Autumn with Austen

Promenade to the library for Autumn with Austen, a short series—similar to last year’s Shaking up Shakespeare—that will feature talks about Jane Austen’s timeless works.

The Cold Spring Branch series will kick off with a discussion on Persuasion, as presented by Northern Kentucky University’s Dr. Andrea Gazzaniga on Thursday, Sept. 26 from 6:30-8 pm. The first 15 to register for the talks will receive a copy of Persuasion to keep.

Check our website at cc-pl.org as we announce more details.

Curbside Trick or Treat

Calling all goblins and ghouls! Curbside Trick or Treat is back on Saturday, Oct. 19 to the Cold Spring, Newport and Carrico/Fort Thomas branches from 6-7:30 pm. All ages can trick or treat from their car.

Visit different stations for candy, a craft and a book. Walking is also welcome! Costumes are encouraged.

Stay tuned for details and other spooky programs happening this October.

Signature Series: Bibelhauser Brothers

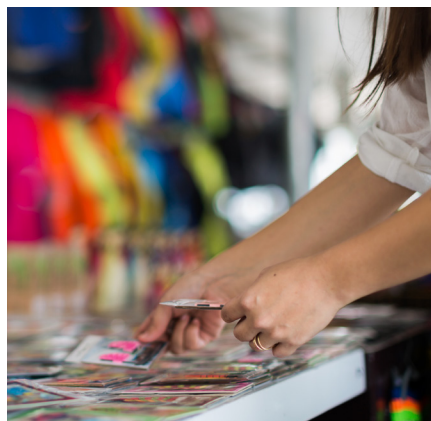

The Bibelhauser Brothers will round out this fall’s Signature Series lineup with a concert at 7 pm Friday, Nov. 1.

Adam and Aaron, twin brothers, will bring their high-energy bluegrass act to the Newport Branch. The duo bills their music as “an experience fueled by instrumental prowess, original songs and obscure country classics.”

Aaron has written songs for award-winning bluegrass artists like Del McCoury, Balsam Range, Michael Cleveland and Dale Ann Bradley. You may also recognize him as the host of “Bluegrass Evolution,” a show on Louisville, Kentucky-based radio station 91.9 WFPK. Register.

Newport Art Bazaar

We may still be in the thick of summer heat, but holiday shopping is right around the corner. Mark your calendars for the Newport Art Bazaar on Saturday, Nov. 9 from 11 am to 4 pm.

The event will be held on both floors of the Newport Branch. Market-goers can check out local vendors selling an array of items for $30 or less!

If you’re interested in participating as a vendor, look out for a call-for-artists post. Send any questions to Cody Elliott, the Newport Branch’s adult/teen services programmer, at CElliott@cc-pl.org

Health Fair

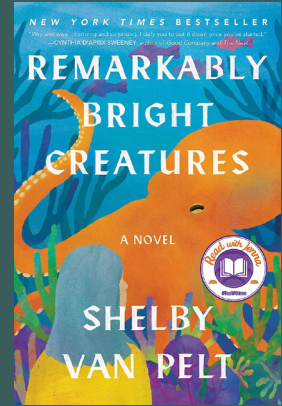

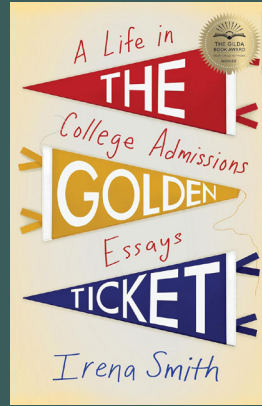

Head to the Newport Branch on Saturday, Nov. 2 from 10 am - 2 pm for the Health Fair.

The fair will have opportunities to access free screenings and training. Take CPR classes, get screened at the St. Elizabeth mammogram van, give blood with Hoxworth, receive smoking cessation information and more.

Visit cc-pl.org for updated information as the date grows closer.

Tune in to Virtual Author Talks this August

We're bringing three virtual author talks to patrons this month in partnership with the Library Speakers Consortium. This month's talks will take viewers a bit everywhere, from space to the world of college admissions to under the sea.

View the lineup below. All talks are free! Register at libraryc.org/ccpl/upcoming.

Smithsonian National Air and Space Museum Curator Dr. Jennifer Levasseur will guide you through the Smithsonian's Behind the Scenes at the Space Station and take you on a once-in-a-lifetime virtual tour of the International Space Station on Wednesday, Aug. 7 at 2 pm. Learn about what astronauts do once they make it to the space station, from their day-to-day work to job profiles to experiments and more.

Redefining Success for Parents of Teens with Irena Smith, PhD

College application season is almost here; if you're the parent of a teen looking toward college, or a teen yourself considering applying, this talk may be for you. Save the date for Thursday, Aug. 15 at 2 pm. A former Stanford Admissions Officer, and mother herself, Irena Smith, PhD will discuss healthy ways to approach the college application process with your teen.

Smith saw the pressure parents put on children to gain admission to schools firsthand; her own children have dealt with developmental delays, learning differences, severe depression and anxiety. Smith's 2023 memoir, The Golden Ticket: A Life in College Admissions Essays, discusses both her personal and professional life.

An Exploration of Friendship, Reckoning, and Hope with Novelist Shelby Van Pelt

Deep dive with New York Times bestselling author Shelby Van Pelt on Wednesday, Aug. 21 at 7 pm as she talks about her novel Remarkably Bright Creatures. The debut novel follows a widow's unlikely friendship with a giant Pacific octopus at the Sowell Bay Aquarium, where she works the night shift. The story also unravels answers about her son's disappearance 30 years ago.

Newport & Cold Spring Renovation Information

The Newport Branch is undergoing renovations! Thank you for your patience as we work on updating the branch's flooring and elevator.

The branch will be curbside-only from July 29 to Aug. 2, and the lower level will be closed to the public starting July 29 through Sept. 8. The bathrooms will also undergo renovations in August and handicap accessible porta potties will be available at the Newport Branch. The Friends Room will remain open for the Thursday book sale on Aug. 22 from 9 am to noon.

The Cold Spring Branch bathrooms will be closed due to renovations on Aug. 5; handicap accessible porta potties will be available for use.

Ways to Use the Library, Beyond Books!

The library is here for you, not just to provide access to our physical and digital collection of books, audiobooks, ebooks and other materials, but as a community space, study spot and more.

In the heat of summer, the library provides a free place to cool off and relax. While you're at it, why not attend one of our programs? From author talks to crafts to clubs to game nights, there's something for all ages and interests.

The library is also a great place to study, meet or get work done. To view our meeting and study room availability, visit cc-pl.org/meeting-study-rooms. The Newport, Carrico/Fort Thomas and Cold Spring branches all have laptops and desktop computers available for use; the Alexandria Branch has four laptops.

Plus, you can use your computer, smartphone or tablet to send a printing request from home to pick up at one of our branches. Learn more at cc-pl.org/print-scan-fax.

We could go on and on about the services we provide; whether you need technology training, help researching a topic or test proctoring, among others, the library is here for you.

Join a Book Club!

The library offers a dozen book clubs for all ages and interests, whether you want to crack open a banned book, are a romance reader, thriller enthusiast or romance reader.

There are three clubs aimed at teens/tweens and one for grades K-5. All four branches host clubs, so you can join no matter where you are in Campbell County!

Grab a July-December book club booklet at any branch or visit cc-pl.org/book-clubs to learn more.

Friends of the Library Book Sales

Head to the Friends of the Library Book Sale this fall for can't-miss deals on used books, DVDs, audiobooks and CDs. Save the date for 2024's remaining sales:

- 9 am-noon Thursday, Aug. 22
- 9 am-5 pm Thursday-Saturday, Sept. 12-14
- 9 am-noon Thursday, Sept. 26

- 9 am-noon Thursday, Oct. 24
- 9 am-5 pm Thursday-Saturday, Nov. 7-9.

Held in the lower level of the Newport Branch in the Friends Room, prices range from 25 cents to $3. You can donate gently used items at any branch.

Prep for a New School Year

Hey, teachers: Back-to-school season has arrived. The library is here to help you prepare your classroom for the school year ahead. Read on for a guide on library resources for teachers.

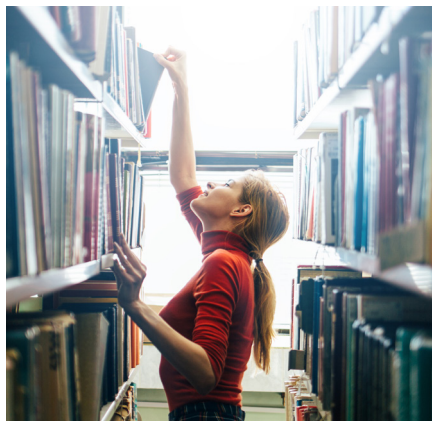

Teacher Cards

Along with a personal library card, educators can easily sign up for a Teacher Card to use for their classroom. You don't have to live or teach in Campbell County to sign up for a Teacher Card; all you need is current proof of employment or verification of homeschool participation.

Teacher Cards are available to those working in adult education, K-12 public/private schools, childcare centers and organizations for individuals with disabilities.

Request Books

If you're in need of books for a project or assignment in your classroom, let us help you! With a week's notice, library staff can pull books, audio and visual materials for you to check out and use in your classroom. We can pull books for your students!

To place a collection request, fill out the form at cc-pl.org/teacher-collection-request.

Online Resources

Do you need help giving your students a place to access online resources for research assignments? Send them our way! The library has over a dozen databases that can be accessed from school or home with a library card and its password.

Databases include Academic Search Complete, EBSCO's K-8 ebook Collection, Gale in Context: Opposing Viewpoints, TOPICsearch, Middle Search Plus, LearningExpress and more. You can also access dozens of current magazines, newspapers and more through the library—both in print and digitally.

Take a Trip to the Library!

Need to get out of the classroom? We give tours of our branches to school groups! For younger students, tours include stories and a tour of our collection. Older students are taught how to use the online catalog, web resources and more. Call any branch to schedule a visit.

Library staff can also visit you to provide stories and other activities to your classroom. If you're interested, request a visit a few weeks in advance by calling.

Meet a Therapy Dog at Puppy Tales

If you've ever attended one of the library's Puppy Tales programs, there's a good chance you've met Koda, an AKC-accredited therapy bernedoodle who loves story time.

What exactly is a therapy pet? Love on a Leash defines a therapy animal as a "pet that is trained with its owner as a team to provide comfort and stress relief to others in a variety of situations."

Koda's handler, Amy Sloan, says her journey with therapy pets began with her first dog, who came into her family's life soon after they moved to Tennessee in 2011. They lived in a house near a lake; it was spring, and Sloan was preparing for their first big family-and-friends gathering. Her husband went down to ready a boat and returned with a surprise: a black fluffball. After no one claimed him as their own, they grew attached. (Sloan and her family now live in Greater Cincinnati.)

"I told my husband, 'If you let us keep him, I promise I will make him a therapy pet and give back to the community,'" recalls Sloan. "He found me for a reason and I didn't go pick him out of the pound. It was something meant to be."

Sloan's first dog died from an injury after about six years. Sloan went through a grieving process, and her oldest daughter knew something was missing. That led to Koda coming to live with them in 2019.

Becoming a certified therapy pet is a year-and-a-half long process of obedience training. Though she wanted Koda to be a therapy dog from the start, Sloan says it's really not up to her as the owner.

"They have to have the right temperament," says Sloan. "They have to be able to want to go to classes, learn the obedience and be a people dog."

Koda, as history goes, took to the training swimmingly. Afterward, Sloan and Koda began visiting places like schools, nursing homes, community events and more—including Campbell County Public Library!

Both the Carrico/Fort Thomas Branch and the Alexandria Branch host semi-regular Puppy Tales programs, where patrons can read a story or two to a specially-trained therapy dog. Sessions are 15 minutes. Fort Thomas features another pooch, Jasmine, along with her handler Jenney Tenney.

The next Puppy Tales is from 2-4 pm on Aug. 17 at the Carrico/Fort Thomas branch. Register and staff will contact you to schedule a specific time.

"I don't get paid monetarily," says Sloan, a former special education teacher.

"I get paid in the smiles. This morning, we went to an elementary school we'd never been to before. It was a surprise; the kids didn't know we were coming... They squealed and were so excited."

The benefits of therapy depend on the population; for kids, it can be a special treat or a way to unwind from stressors. When the duo visits memory care units, Sloan says that the older adults often reminisce on happy times with past pets.

"If I get to give that stranger 10 minutes of happiness, that's all that matters," says Sloan.
